REPEATING ITSELF.

But Instead of History It Was Romance.

'Close the shutters, Kitty. What a terrible night it is, to be sure. The rain is coming down in floods.'

A barrack ground, stiff and ugly under the most favorable circumstances, looking like a desert in the wind and rain, was just visible.

'Why, Aunt Bell,' said the girl, pausing with one hand on the shutter, 'here is a name scratched on this pane of glass. I never noticed it till this minute.'

'What is the name?' asked the old lady, half asleep by the fire.

'Kinloch, Scots Greys, 1816,' read the young girl, 'and then 'Kitty' written very badly just below.'

'Kinlock! Kitty!' said Aunt Bell, starting up with sudden interest. 'Why, that must be the same man!' Then she sank back again, murmuring: 'Ah, Kitty, there was love in those days, and romance, too.'

'Is there no love now?' said Kitty, coming to her aunt's side and kneeling down on the hearth rug.

The ruddy flames and glow from the fire lit up the girl's chestnut hair, fair complexion, and bright hazel eyes. Aunt Bell gazed lovingly down at the piquant little face and said:

'Now and again we meet some of the right kind, but would you like to hear the story of that namesake of yours, Kitty?'

'Very much.'

'Well, fifty years ago, as you know, I was a girl of sixteen, and was invited to spend the summer months with my aunt, who then had one of the finest houses in this county of Kildare.

'Several regiments were stationed at the camp and at a neighboring village, so you may imagine the girls of the party and I anticipated a gay time. Oh, those summer months! I grow young again as I think of them! The rides across the Curragh in the fresh morning air, when in parties of ten or fifteen we would gallop for miles on the stretches of breezy turf; the handsome officers who played hide-and seek with us in the evening hours all over the big house, starting out of corners and chasing us breathlessly down the slippery oaken corridors. Then, tired out, we would stroll into the garden, and under the trees there would be songs, flirtations and whispered confidences and promises made by the score and never fulfilled. What a mad merry time it was! The merriest and handsomest of all was a young Scotch Lieutenant, Kinloch Kinloch. His mother was Irish, and had bequeathed him her beauty and propensity for joking.

'And now for Kitty, the heroine. She was the daughter of a gardener who lived about a mile from my aunt's house, and of all the distractingly pretty girls that have made men do silly things I am sure Kitty was one of the prettiest. I can't do her justice; but I can tell you she had the Irish blue eye; a complexion like milk, hair of the silkiest chestnut, curling in rings all over her brow, and a slender, upright figure, the envy of all our girls. One day, as a large party of us were talking under the trees, Kitty passed us with a basket of fruit. Kinloch for the first time noticed the girl, and seemed struck dumb with amazement. He stood at a little distance, and kept his eyes fixed on her. It was love from that very moment, and every one noticed it. All the young men swarmed about the girl's basket and began helping themselves. She expostulated, but they put her off. Said one:

'"Sure, Kitty, and you would like us to have the best. I'll be bound.'

'Another said: 'Mahone, one kiss from that cheek with the flush of the peach upon it will save you from these rascally thieves, for I will fight them all for such a favor.'

'But Kitty would not be bribed, and seemed about to resign herself to the lose of her fruit, when Kinloch shouldered his way into the group, and giving the last speaker a friendly push, cried: 'Leave the girl alone, Grant, please.' Then he turned to Kitty, saying: 'It is very heavy for your little arms, and there will come no one stealing the fruit now, I'm thinking.'

"'Thank you,' said Kitty, gratefully, and walked along by his side.

"'That is the first time I have seen my lady allow any one to fetch and carry for her,' my brother said.

"'There is no gainsaying Kinloch, then, for he always gets his own way in what he wants, Harry,' I said.

"'Especially when it has to do with pretty girls,' sneered Grant.

"'Treason!' we all shouted in a breath. 'Kinloch is the same to us all.'

"'Of course; but are you not all pretty girls?' said Grant.

'We laughed, and did not deny the soft impeachment; and so the momentary breach was healed. That was the first time we noticed Kitty coming up to our house with her fruit. We were quite sure nothing we could have said or done would have prevented her, but we were not quite so sure about Kinloch, who, ever since that little episode, had wandered about like a distressed lover. One day we met Kitty in a lane, and I said to her:

"'How is it you never come our way now?'

'The girl blushed. 'Father prefers to take up the things himself,' she murmured; for which painfully apparent fib we forgave her.

'The days passed on and Kinloch, who had before been the life of our expeditions, was now generally absent. Where he had been was evident, for we often caught a glimpse of chestnut hair shining through the trees, or the old picturesque red shawl draped over Kitty's head and shoulders, her round, dimpled arm appearing just below. Kinloch's regiment had been ordered away to another part of Ireland, and one morning, a few days before he was to go, we begged for his company to a picnic we had arranged to have with one or two other families.

"'Thanks very much, but I'm afraid I shall be too busy,' he said.

"'Oh, but you must come! We all counted upon you,' we said.

"'But, I—I have so many things to do to-day.'

'Here he stopped and blushed. We girls were devoured with curiosity, and some of the men had a perceptible sneer on their faces.

"'He has got to say farewell to his lady-love,' suggested Philip Grant.

'Kinloch turned on him with blazing eyes. We all kept back. They were like globes of fire.

"'Confound it, sir, and suppose I have! What is that to you?' he cried.

'We all stared at Philip; he was very white, but he shrugged his shoulders and wisely forebore to answer. Kinloch's temper calmed down as rapidly as it had risen.

"'I am sorry to disoppoint you, girls, but I must beg to be excused,' he said gently; and bowing, he walked off.

'We watched his upright, manly figure striding along till he disappeared, and then we all looked at each other and sighed.

"'A clear case,' said one girl.

"'Head over heels.'

"'What will he do?'

"'How can he marry her?'

"'Kitty can take care of herself.'

"'But I'm sure she is in love; she never has been before.'

"'He will go away and forget her.'

"'He gave his bridle rein a shake,
Said, Adieu forevermore, my love,
Adieu forevermore.'

"'Never! Nothing of the kind will happen. I'm sure he will marry her,' I said.

'That night Kinloch made his way to the gardener's cottage. His face was pale, but he had a determined look at the corners of his mouth, he carried his head well thrown back, and stepped lightly along. The girl had just set her father's supper before him, and had gone out to rest in the garden and enjoy the still beauties of the night. The air was fresh and the full moon was hurrying through the star-spangled course. The reeds in the neighboring streams rustled and shivered in the breeze, and the night moths bumping against Kitty's white kerchief on their way to the fatal candle in the window. The girl's eyes filled with tears.

"'You are going away,' she said.

"'Yes, I am going away, but you will come with me, Kitty, for you love me,' said Kinloch.

"'Come back in ten years, Kinloch. I will be true to you and wait till then. I will try and improve myself—make myself more worthy of your love.'

"'Keep as you are, Kitty; remain unchanged,' said the young man, jealously, 'lest when I come back again I shall not see in you the last look that I took away with me, my life, my love!' he murmured, passionately, and then kissed her sweet brow and mouth, and folding her in one last embrace he left her.

'As she went into the cottage a large moth sailed in before her, flew up into the alluring brightness of the candle and dropped dead on the table.

"'Kitty, my girl,' said the old man, pointing significantly to the insect, 'don't be as silly as that thing. Its eyes were dazzled, and it had no strength to resist the fatal fascination.'

"'Father, you may trust me,' said the girl, bending down and kissing the gray hair.

Here Aunt Bell stopped.

'Is it interesting? Shall I go on?'

'Oh do! Did he come back?' said her niece.

'Well, the years passed on, and the girl was joked and teased and had many offers of marriage, but she was firm and would listen to none. At last the young fellows grew weary of their fruitless attempt at love-making, and the greater part left her alone. A few, more unkind, would ask when she expected her young gentleman home, and taunted her in cutting speeches and insinuations. Nine years went by, and there came the battle of Waterloo, when officers and men went down together in hundreds. Still no word from Kinloch, and Kitty's heart, which had never failed in its lightness nor her step in its speed, now sank and faltered for the first time.

'Early in the next year—in fact, on New Year's night—the officers gave a ball, and every girl and young man for miles around was invited. Girls were in great demand then, and I went down to my aunt's house especially for that night. I was anxious to see Kitty myself and to find out how the years had passed over her head. You think, perhaps, twenty-six was rather old to be called a girl—do you, Kitty. Well, I felt almost as young as when I was sixteen.'

'Kate Daly—that was her name—went to help the ladies unshawl themselves, and to be ready with needle and thread when the unhappy damsel with torn skirt or flounce should require her assistance. She was then twenty-eight, and the young, girlish beauty had developed into the most lovely of women. Only when her face was at rest, and you saw the suspicion of an anxious heart upon it, would you have guessed her age. She wore a pale, tea-rose-tinted gown, with ruffles of lace of her own making at the neck and sleeves.

'It was a wild and stormy night without, just such a one as this, but it only served to enhance the brightness and animation of the scene within. The dancing of the high-heeled shoes and the silvery laughter rose higher than the roar of the wind, and the tinkling wine-cups drowned all sound of rain. Suddenly there was a lull; we stopped dancing; a chill blast swept round us; we turned and saw a silent figure standing in the doorway.

'He was tall and handsome, but his large black cloak, carelessly thrown over his shoulder, was dripping with the rain and making large puddles on the floor. His legs, booted and spurred, were mud up to the hips.

Just at that moment the clock struck twelve, and the year 1816 had broken. Some of the nervous girls screamed and ran behind their partners. Was it an apparition? Was it an ill oman for the coming year?

"'I seem to frighten you, friends. Does nobody know me?'

'Kitty at that moment was bringing in a jug of iced claret at another door. She heard the voice and turned round trembling, with a wild cry.

"'Kinloch, Kinloch, I knew you would come back!' And amidst a crash of breaking glass—for she let the vessel slip from her hands—she sprang to his side, and disappeared in the folds of his great cloak.'

'How splendid, Aunt Bell!' said her niece, drawing a deep breath; 'but if she married him then I don't see why she should not have done so before.'

'Ah, but she was a wise girl; she knew it would test his constancy, and prove if he really loved her. A young man's love at twenty-one—as she knew so well—would not be his choice at thirty-one.'

'What become of them, aunt?'

'Oh, they married and traveled about a great deal, and finally both died out in India within a few months of each other. There was one son, and I believe he is in the army, also. Come, Kitty, I shall go to bed, and not wait any longer for your father.'

'There is a new Lieutenant coming in Mr. Perry's place,' said her niece, as she bade her good-night.

'The young men are not what they used to be,' sighed the old lady. 'Some little whipper-snapper, I'll be bound, with feet that would fit in your slippers. Good-night, childie!'

Kitty went down-stairs and pondered over the story of the beautiful Kate Daly and faithful Kinloch. She went to the window and undid the shutter. She pictured to herself the young man as he came to the window and scratched his name on the glass, and then, taking the girl's hand in his, slowly guiding it just below. She leaned in the shadow of the window seat and tried to realize each scene in the little drama. There, under that very door, stood the tall, black-gobed figure they had all shrunk away from in the midst of their mirth.

What! was she dreaming? What stood there at that moment? A figure darker than the gloom of the room. The rain poured in rivers outside, the wind whistled round the house. The figure came farther into the room. She saw by the misty light that he was a tall man with a dark cloak over his shoulders, booted and spurred, with mud up to his hips. She felt as if the whole scene was to be played over again, but she looked in vain for the pretty girls with their puffed sleeves and short waists, their flowing curles and high-heeled shoes. Kitty, where was she? And here she blushed to herself in the darkness. There was a Kitty, but not that one.

The man came up to the window, evidently thinking no one was in the room; the girl shrank back as the wet cloak brushed against her cheek.

'Kinloch!' she said, half doubting whether the figure would answer, for she could hardly tell yet whether she was dreaming or no.

'Who spoke my name?' he called out, glancing round.

'I did,' said Kitty, feeling very abashed, almost at his elbow.

He glanced down, drawing away his wet cloak.

'I am sure I beg your pardon; I thought the room was empty. I must have come into the wrong quarters. Arriving so late I must have mistaken the block. I hope you will forgive such an intrusion.'

Kitty's castles in the air all fell to the ground with a crash. How commonplace. He was only the new Lieutenant after all; but he did not appear the whipper-snapper her aunt had prophesied.

'Then you are not Kinloch?' she said, in a disappointed tone.

'My name is Kinloch,' he answered, with a pleasant smile.

'My aunt was telling me about this Kinloch,' and Kitty tapped the frame with her finger. 'I will tell you the story some day if you like; but you came into the room just as she said your namesake did, dressed in the same way and every thing. But here! I suppose you are not even a relation?'

'He was my father,' said the young man, quietly; 'so no wonder we are something alike.' It was now his turn to say, in a disappointed tone: 'But your name is not Kitty, I'm sure.'

'Yes, it is,' she said, eagerly, then paused; a sudden rosy flush rushed over her face. 'At least, no—it is——'

But she could not deny it for it was Kitty.

'Some day, perhaps.'

NIAGARA FALLS.

An Aged Couple Who Don't Know Whether They Have Seen Them or Not.

There was an old couple at the Third street depot the other day who had been to Niagara Falls and were waiting for a train to their home in the interior of the State. They just felt that they had accomplished a big thing, and were consequently quite elated. They had scarcely taken seats in the waiting-room before the old man turned to a stranger and said:

'We've jist got back from Niagry Falls. Powerful sight, them falls are. Hin't nuthin' like them falls in this hull country.'

'Never heard of 'em,' gruffly replied the man.

'You didn't! Lor' bless me, but that's astonishing! Neve heard of Niagry Falls!'

'Never. What is it anyhow?'

'Why, it's the biggest lot of water you ever saw, falling over the awfullest precipice you ever heard of. Why, it makes folks shiver to look at it.'

'Singular that none of the papers have ever mentioned it.'

'They haven't? Why them fails has bin there for thousands of years.'

'Wasn't it a freshet or a dam broke loose, or something of that sort?'

'No, siree! That water keeps a pouring and roaring and humming all the time.'

'Must have been some trick about it,' carelessly observed the cynic. 'If it was a real thing there'd be some excitement about it. You don't drink?'

'Me drink? I've never drunk a drop in my life!'

'Well, it's to bad. Any one who will swindle an old man like you ought to be horsewhipped.'

'Swindled? Do you purtend there hain't no Niagry Falls?'

'Say, Hanner;' replied the old man, as he turned to his wife after awhile, 'did you hear that?'

'Every word.'

'Say, when we git home we'll keep mum until I see Stebbins and feel around and see if there is a Niagry Falls. If we've bin fooled we don't want to be laffed at; if it's all right we kin do our blowing when it's safe and will count. Don't say Goat Island nor Hore'-shoe Falls nor Bridal Vail to no livin' soul until we find out whether that ginger ale flew to our heads, or the show was all right and wuth the money.'—Detroit Free Press.

A WRECKED CITY.

Great Loss of Life—The Destruction to Property Roughly Estimated at $5,000,000.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Sept. 1.—There was a terrible earthquake here last night at 9.50 o'clock. The principal business portion of the city was destroyed and hundreds of persons were rendered homeless. Men were frantic, women were beseeching mercy from the Almighty and children were in tears.

THE SCENE THRILLINGLY DESCRIBED.

The following article was prepared for publication in the "News" and "Courier," and is telegraphed almost in the writer's own words:

Necessarily the description that can be given of the disaster which has befallen our city consists in the narration of the experiences and observations of individuals, and, the subject being the same and the experiences of all being nearly alike, the story told by one careful observer may well stand for a hundred others, with slight variations. Probably the best idea that can be had of the character of the disturbance here may be obtained from a narration of the events and scenes of Tuesday night as they were presented to a single person. When engaged in his usual duties in the second story room of the "News and Courier" office at the time of the first shock the writer's attention was vaguely attracted by a sound which seemed to come from the office below, and which was supposed for a moment to be caused by the rapid rolling of a heavy body, as an iron safe or a heavily laden truck, over the floor. Accompanying the sound there was a perceptible tremor of the building, not more marked, however, than would be caused by the passage of a street car or a dray along the street. For perhaps two or three seconds the occurrence excited no surprise or comment. Then by swift degrees, or perhaps all at once, it is difficult to say which, the sound deepened in volume, the tremor became more decided, the ear caught the rattle of window-sashes, gas-fixturas and other loose objects. The men in the office, with perhaps a simultaneous flash of recollections of the disturbance of the Friday before, glanced hurridly at each other, sprang to their feet, with startled questions and answers. What is that? Earthquake? And then all was bewilderment and confusion. Then the long roll deepened and spread into an awful roar that seemed to pervade at once the troubled earth and the still air above and around. The tremor was a rude, rapid quiver that agitated the whole lofty, strong-walled building as though it were being shaken by the hand of an immeasurable power with intent to tear its joints asunder and scatter its stones and bricks abroad as a tree casts its over-ripened fruit before the breath of the gale.

There was no intermission in the vibration of the mighty subterranean engine. From the first to the last it was a continuous jar, only adding force at every moment, and as it approached and reached the climax of its manifestation it seemed for a few terrible seconds that no work of human hands could possibly survive the shocks. The floors were heaving under foot, the surrounding walls and partitions visibly swayed to and fro, the crash of falling masses of stone and brick and mortar was heard overhead, and without the terrible roar filled the ears and seemed to fill the mind and heart, dazing perception, bewildering thought, and for a few panting breaths, or while you held your breath in dreadful anticipation of immediate and cruel death, you felt that life was already past, and waited for the end as the victim, with his head on the block, awaits the fall of the uplifted ax.

It is not given to many men to look in the face of the destroyer and yet live; but it is little to say that the group of strong men who shared the experience above faintly described will carry with them the recollection of that supreme moment to their dying day. None expected to escape. A sudden rush was simultaneously made to endeavor to attain the open air and flee to a place of safety; but before the door was reached all reeled together to the tottering wall and stopped, feeling that hope was vain, that it was only a question of death within the building or without, to be buried by the sinking roof or crushed by the toppling walls. The uproar slowly died away in seeming distance. The earth was still, and oh! the blessed relief of that stillness; but how rudely that silence was broken. As we dashed down the stairway and out into the street, already on every side arose the shrieks, the cries of pain and fear, the prayers, wailings of terrified women and children mingled with the hoarse shouts of excited men. Out in the street the air was filled to the height of the houses with a whitish cloud of dry, stifling dust from the lime and mortar and shattered masonry which, falling upon the pavement and stone roadway, had been reduced to powder. Through this cloud, dense as a fog, the gaslights flickered dimly, shedding but little light so that you stumbled at every step over piles of brick or became entangled in the lines of telegraph wires that depended in every direction from their broken supports. On every side were hurrying forms of men and women, bareheaded, partially dressed—some almost nude—and many of whom were crazed with fear or excitement. Here a woman is supported, half fainting, in the arms of her husband, who vainly tries to soothe her, while he carries her into the open space at the street corner, where present safety seems assured; there a woman lies on the pavement with upturned face and outstretched limbs, and the crowd passes her by for the time, not pausing to see whether she be alive or dead.

A sudden light flares through a window overlooking the street; it becomes momentarily brighter, and the cry of "Fire!" resounds from the multitude. A rush is made toward the spot. A man is seen doubled up and helpless against the wall, but at this moment, somewhere out at sea, overhead, deep in the ground, is heard again the low, ominous roll which is already too well known to be mistaken. It grows louder and nearer, like the growl of a wild beast swiftly approaching his prey; and all is forgotten again in the frenzied rush for the open space where alone there is hope of security, faint though it be. The tall buildings on either hand blot out the skies and the stars, and seem to overhang every foot of ground between them. The shattered cornice and copings at the tops of their frowning walls seem piled from both sides to the centre of the street. It seems that a touch would now send the shattered masses left standing down upon the people below, who look up to them and shrink together as the tremor of the earthquake again passes under them, and the mysterious reverberations swell and roll along like some infernal drum-beat summoning them to die, and it passes away, and again is experienced the blessed feeling of deliverance from impending calamity, which it may well be believed will provoke a mute but earnest offering of mingled prayer and thanksgiving from every heart in the throng.

Again, far along the street and up from the alleys that lead into it on either side is heard that chorus of wailing and lamentation which, though it had not ceased, was scarcely noticed a moment before. It is a dreadful sound, the sound of helpless, horror-stricken humanity, old and young, the strong and the feeble alike, where all are so feeble, calling for help from their fellow-creatures and raising their anguished voices in petition to Heaven for mercy, where no human aid could avail. It is not a scene to be described by any mortal tongue or pen. It is not a scene to be forgotten when the witness has shared all its dangers and felt all its agony.

The first shock occurred at seven minutes of 10, as was indicated this morning by the public clocks, the hands on all of which had stopped at that fateful hour, as though to mark the end of time for so many who had heard the preceding hour pealed forth by St. Michael's chimes without a thought but of long and happy life. The second shock, which was but a faint, crisp echo of the first, was felt eight minutes later. As it passed away the writer started homeward, to find the scenes enacted on Broad street, around the "News and Courier" office, repeated at every step of the way. St. Michael's steeple towered high and white above the gloom, seemingly uninjured. The station-house, a massive brick building across the street, had apparently lost its roof, which had fallen around it. A little further on the roof of a portion of the Hibernian Hall, a handsome building in the Grecian style, had crushed to the ground, carrying down part of the massive granite pillars with it. All the way up Meeting street, which in respect of its general direction and importance may be called "The Broadway of Charleston," the roadway was piled with debris from the tops of the walls.

In passing the Charleston Hotel, which, to carry out the comparison above indicated, occupies the position of Stewart's up-town store in New York, the third shock was felt about ten minutes after the second, and, of course, caused the greatest alarm in that neighborhood as elsewhere. At Marion Square, corresponding exactly with Union Square, New York, a great crowd had collected, as even the edges of the wide spaces embraced in it could not be reached by the nearest buildings in the event of their fall. From this crowd, composed of men, women and children of both races, arose incessant calls and cries of lamentation, while over the motley half-dressed throng was seen the lurid light of the conflagration which had broken out just beyond the square immediately after the first shock and had nearly enveloped several buildings in flames. In three other quarters of the town at the same time similar large fires were observed under full headway, and the awful significance of the earthquake may most fully be appreciated, perhaps, when it is said that with these tremendous fires blazing up

Democratic State Ticket.

For Governor—
CHAUNCEY F. BLACK, of York.

For Lieutenant-Governor—
R. BRUCE RICKETTS, of Luzerne.

For Auditor-General—
WILLIAM J. BRENNEN, of Allegheny.

For Secretary of Internal Affairs—
J. SIMPSON AFRICA, of Huntingdon.

For Congressman-at-Large—
MAXWELL STEVENSON, of Philadel.

Democratic County Ticket.

Representatives { JOHN A. WOODWARD, LEONARD RHONE.

Prothonotary—L. A. SHAFFER.

District Attorney—J. CALVIN MEYER.

Congress—HON. A. G. CURTIN, subject to the diecision of the congressional district convention.

Senate—HON. P. GRAY MEEK, subject to the decision of the senatorial district convention.

THE democrats of Arkansas swept the state by electing their state ticket by a majority of 20,000, and also elected a majority of the members of the Legislature.

BY simply doing their duty and sticking to their ticket democrats will be pleasantly rewarded in November in seeing the BLACK man walk into the governor's office while the BEAVER and the WOLFE may wonder why they failed to get there.

THE Controller of Currency at Washington has decided to impose the penalty of $100 per day on a number of National Banks who are in the habit of being tardy in forwarding reports of their condition. By establishing this precedent the banks will no doubt be more punctual after this.

THE republican population of Bellefonte and vicinity gave Gen. Beaver, the gubernatorial candidate, an enthusiastic reception on his return from his extended trip on Tuesday evening. All right, this is the time to give cheerful receptions, because if any reception is given him after November 2nd we are afraid it will be a sad one.

THE Democratic Convention of Clinton county which was held in the Court House of Lock Haven, on Tuesday of last week, nominated S. R. Peale, for Congress, T. C. Hipple, for Senate, J. U. Shaffer, for Assembly, J. W. Crawford and H. S. Dieffenbach, for Associate Judges, F. J. Davis, for County Surveyor and J. A. Wensel, for County Chairman.

STRANGE but true that the average Republican feels very bitter towards the Prohibition party and yet at the same time the Republican platform contains a plank which advocates the very principle which is the fundament of the cold water party. If the Republican party favors prohibition why can not "the Beaver and Wolf lie down together" and be friends?

As the campaign progresses it becomes more apparent that Democrats take a cool and thoughtful view of the impending battle and expect to work more than usual for the election of their state and county tickets. 'Union' has got to be the watchword along the line, and personal objections and dislikes are laid aside for the sake of party success. And so it should be. All the candidates nominated have splendid records as good and faithful democrats, who are eminently fitted for the offices they will fill and a democrat who would not support any or all of these deserving men, dare not call himself a democrat. There is a thing called "duty" and the democratic voters understand that word full-well. When it comes to a final test they will show that they are ready and willing to do their duty, in spite of all the Republican maneuvers to effect a rupture in the democratic party.

EARTHQUAKES have been playing havoc all over the United States last week. Charleston, S. C., was nearly totally destroyed by the several shocks it experienced, especially the one on Tuesday night of last week, a pen picture of which may be found on our first page.

WE hope our Republican friends in the county will not build too many air castles about the possible defeat of the democratic county ticket this fall, because if those castles fall, and fall they will, it will be the next thing to an earthquake for them. Things are moving along smoothly on our side and all their efforts to break the Democratic columns in November will be fruitless. Mark it.

THE Taylor family in Tennessee expect to make the fight for Governor of that state hot and interesting. Two brothers are running against each other and the father of the two candidates expects to come out for Governor on the Prohibition ticket. They seem bound to keep the office in the family. As Tennessee is a democratic state the Taylor on that ticket will capture the office.

EX-GOVERNOR Curtin was interviewed at Bedford Springs on the Centre county indorsement for Congress, which he received some days ago. He says: "I will not accept under any circumstances. I was in earnest when I declined a renomination."

This should settle all doubts and do away with all opinions to the contrary. We never had any idea that the Governor was not as good as his word.

THE council committee appointed to investigate the charges against the Mayor of Philadelphia began its task and the very first day's work reveals illegal actions as big as mountains. The mayor seeing that he got into a tight box has already plead guilty to some of the charges. He acknowledges for one that he has not kept the city's money separate from his own, or in other words that he used the money belonging into the City treasury for private purposes. Altered or forged checks have been produced, and proofs were furnished that the mayor, and his secretary, have received black mail moneys from the pawnbrokers to seal their lips. In fact there is evidence enough to stamp Mayor Smith and his assistant official scoundrels. No doubt Smith by this time wishes "Dear McClure hadn't talked."

A Voice from Gov. Black's Home.

The York county democrats in convention assembled at the court house of York on Monday afternoon passed a set of resolutions that sound like the keynote to the march of democratic victory in November and which show how much respected and liked the Democratic candidate for Governor is at his own home. The resolutions as given below passed unanimously and prove that there is nothing lukewarm about the York county democracy:

WHEREAS, In acknowledgement of the honor paid York county in giving it the Gubernatorial nomination; therefore

Resolved, That the Democracy of York County, this day in convention assembled, take this occasion to express its supreme gratification and acknowledge with feelings of pride, the high honor paid the county of York, and its devotion to Democratic principles, in the selection of its distinguished son, Hon. Chauncey F. Black, as the Democratic candidate of Pennsylvania by the State Convention, an honor all the more complimentary and marked in consideration of the fact that so many other eminent and distinguished gentlemen were presented to the convention from which to choose a candidate; and it is further

Resolved, That the Democratic party of this loyal county will not rest satisfied with this simple acknowledgement of the distinction shown it in the convention's selection of a standard-bearer from among its citizens, but will in a more emphatic manner register its approval of that selection in November next by giving the candidate for Governor, and his illustrious associates upon the ticket, a greater majority than ever heretofore known in the history of the county, and thus in this substantial manner show its most earnest appreciation of the honor bestowed upon it.

Snyder County Democrats.

MIDDLEBURG, Pa., Sept. 6. — The Snyder County Democrats met in convention to-day at this place. Colonel P. Hilbish, of Penn, was nominated for Congress; Robert Lesher, Esq., received the nomination for Assembly. and P. M. Teatz for County Surveyor. I. G. Lesher, editor of the Times, was made Chairman of the County Committee. The resolutions adopted endorse the National and State administrations, also the course of State Senator Wolverton. They pledged their support to the entire Democratic State ticket nominated at Harrisburg.

Miscellaneous News.

Lost His Leg and Died.

EASTON, Pa., Sept. 2.—James McDermott, for a long time clerk in the Lehigh Valley office at Philipsburg, attempted to leap on a coal tram on that road yesterday at Lansdown, and fell under the cars. His left leg was cut off above the knee. He was taken to St. Luke's Hospital and died there this morning.

Her Dress Caught Fire.

POTTSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 2.—John Whitman and wife, of North Coventry, Chester county, were engaged in boiling apple butter when Mrs. Whitman's clothing caught fire, and before the flames could be extinguished she was terribly burned. Her recovery is doubtful. Mr. Whitman had both hands and arms badly burned in his efforts to save his wife.

Samuel J. Randall Seriously Ill.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3.—Congressman Samuel J. Randall is lying quite seriously ill at his country residence near Paoli. He is suffering from an attack of dysentery, together with his old ailment, gout. None but members of his family are permitted to see him and his physician says that, while his condition is not absolutely critical, it is nevertheless serious.

An Improvement in the Coal Trade

MT. CARMEL, Pa., Sept. 5.—Mine operators report a decided improvement in the coal trade, and predict a most satisfactory season. Bellmore colliery, which by the dullness of trade was forced to suspend on July 1st, will resume work to-morrow, and employ 400 men. The other operators in the district have utilized the suspension in putting their collieries in good shape for the winter's work.

Thieves Make a Haul.

MILTON, Sept. 5.—Yesterday morning burglars gained admittance to the residence of P. L. Hackenberg, of this place. They entered the sleeping apartment, chloroformed Mr. Hackenberg and his wife, stole a $500 watch, $100, safe keys and other valuables. Mr. Hackenberg regained consciousness just as one of the burglars was retreating through the window and fired, but missed him.

Judge Livingstone's Assailant Sentenced.

LANCASTER, Pa., Sept. 5.—Joseph J. Doesch, who attempted to assassinate Judge Livingstone last January was yesterday sentenced to three years and nine months in prison. Doesch, who was a saloon keeper, assaulted Judge Livingstone at the latter's residence because he had revoked Doesch's license in consequence of a violation of the liquor law. A commission appointed to inquire into Doesch sanity was divided in its opinion.

A Bull-Dog Knocks Out a Bicycle.

Montgomery Lightfoot, an expert young bicyclist, of Green and Harvey streets, Germantown, while returning from a ride in the country on Friday afternoon was attacked by a large bull-dog on the Bethlehem pike, one mile above Chestnut Hill. The dog sprang for the rider's legs several times, and for a couple of hundred yards there was some fancy riding done. Failing to get hold of the rider the animal attacked the motor, resulting in the young man taking a header. The timely arrival of several persons prevented the boy being injured by the dog, but he sustained a sprained wrist and an injured elbow from the fall.

Renewed Rioting at Belfast.

BELFAST, Sept. 5.—A mob attacked and severely beat four policemen at Ballymacarrett, a suburb of Belfast, today. The policemen broke away from the crowd and took refuge in a house. The mob followed them, and in their efforts to recapture the policemen completely wrecked the house. Fortunately for the policemen the military arrived on the spot in season to rescue them and scatter the mob. Two of the leaders of the rioters were arrested. An Orange funeral was attacked by Catholics to-day and the procession severely stoned. The Orangemen broke ranks and retaliated upon the Catholics, seriously injuring several of them. The police quelled the disorder and drove the Catholic party away.

Wild Wanderers in Kansas.

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 5.—A search party captured in the woods on Parson's creek, Washington county, the man, woman, a girl aged 15 and a child, known as "the wild family." The man, woman and girl have black hair on their faces and the man much hair on the body. That on the girl's face was very fine. The color of the faces of all is ashy gray. They cannot talk, but the woman makes a peculiar noise, something between a grunt and a groan, which the girl appears to understand. On top of the heads of the man and woman are slight evidences that they have been scalped. The opinion prevails that they were scalped by Indians years ago and became insane and have wandered in the woods ever since. Doctors propose to perform an operation on them in hopes of restoring their minds.

An Operator's Negligence.

An Excursion Train Runs Into the Rear of a Freight.

GLENDON, Pa., Sept. 6.—While the train having on board the locomotive engineers who were in session at Scranton, was nearing this place last night, it ran into the rear of a coal train that was left standing on the down track since this morning without a signal light or any warning whatever. Fred Yoemans, the engineer, after applying the brake and reversing the lever, leaped to the ground and sustained many cuts and bruises on the head, face, body and limbs. George Dye, the fireman, was found wedged fast between the tank and engine, with his legs and lower part of his body mangled in a shocking manner, and his hands and face scalded by escaping steam. He died at his home at Easton at 2 o'clock this morning. Yoemans' injuries, while not dangerous, will confine him to his residence for several weeks. Several engineers on the first car of the excursion train were slightly injured by being thrown from their seats and by broken glass. Dye was to be married on Wednesday to Miss Emma Sies, of Easton, and was to leave on that day to attend the annual session of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen at Minneapolis. He was conscious to the last moment and died in the presence of his intended bride and his parents. The wreck occurred through the carelessness of an operator, whose duty it was to notify Yoemans that the main track was occupied by the coal train.

Robbed of Her Home.

READING, Pa., Sept. 5.—Mrs. Peter McDougall came from Womelsdorf, this county, yesterday and told Mayor Getz a story. Her first husband died some years ago and left her money sufficient to buy a home. Then she married Mr. Peter McDougall, and over a year ago he disappeared. Nothing was heard of him until a few days ago, when he came back. He said that his parents had died in Boston and left him $5 000 and a house there. He wanted his family to go back with him. The wife sold her little home at a sacrifice, obtaining for it $500, which she placed in bank. They came to Reading with their three children, intending to go to Boston. McDougall drew the money out of bank and decamped. The unfortunate woman is penniless and without a home.

IT IS ESTIMATED that there are one hundred thousand sufferers from hay fever in the United States; a number about four times greater than the regular standing army. This number could be reduced to a mere regiment if all would resort to Ely's Cream Balm. 32-4t.

—Relief funds are being sent to Charleston, the wrecked city, from all over the country and the needs of the suffering people are gradually being met. Since the great earthquake, which visited the city last week, the place was shaken up several times, but no further damage is reported.

—The Allegheny Annual conference of the U. B. church will convene at Conemaugh, Cambria Co., Pa., Sept. 22, 1886. The pastor of Millheim circuit, Rev. C. C. Wasson, will preach his last sermon for the conference year in the U. B. church of this place next Sunday morning.

—Brother Foote's Mifflinburg Times came out in enlarged size last week. It is now an eight-page weekly, four pages of which are printed on the patent plan. The paper must be growing in favor and so it should, as the editor seems to work hard to make it as interesting as possible.

IN GOOD TIME.—A certain business firm of town told us the other day to give fair notice that they intend holding some kind of a festival during the holidays and desire other parties with similar intentions to consider themselves second. So you may as well count one festival for the holidays. Particulars later.

—DAVIS & LORETT'S combination troupe is billed for this place, Tuesday, Sept. 14th. According to their posters the company consists of seven or eight comedians who promise to give the most laughable variety entertainment of the season. If their bills tell the truth the show will certainly be worth the admission price, which is 10 and 20 cents.

CAN'T MAKE ANYTHING LIKE IT.—I have been practicing medicine for twenty years, and have never been able to put up a vegetable compound that would, like Simmons Liver Regulator, promptly and effectively move the liver to action and at the same time aid (instead of weakening) the digestive and assimilative powers of the system.

No other remedy within my knowledge can fill its place.

L. M. HINTON, M.D., Washington, Ark.

TAKE NOTICE.—I would hereby kindly give notice to all concerned that my sale notes, which are due on the 19th instant, are left at the Millheim Bank for collection, and if not paid on or soon after maturity, will be placed into the hands of a collector.

C. F. DEININGER.

NEW TAILOR.—Mr. Buck, of Howard, an experienced tailor, has rented Frank's shop on North street and is prepared to do all work in his line at short notice, promising his patrons satisfactory work in every instance. If he receives a patronage that will give him a living he expects to locate permanently in town.

An End to Bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well."

—Abs. Harter publishes the sale of his property on Main street, as well as his timberland near Aaronsburg and also personal property consisting of two ponies, two hogs, spring wagons, grain cradles, harness, and household furniture. The sale to take place Saturday, Sept. 18. He wishes to dispose of these effects because he intends to remove to Sugar Valley. Read bills.

—Hon. Jas. P. Coburn and Dr. C. S. Musser, of Aaronsburg, were to Bellefonte attending the Republican county convention on Tuesday as delegates from Haines township. Rumor says Mr. Coburn will likely be nominated for Assembly on the Republican ticket. It's a real pity that the Colonel is on the wrong side, otherwise he would surely be elected.

—A look at our advertising columns on the second page will tell our readers that Millheim will get a new store by the first of next month. Mr. Cohen, who some time ago sold fancy Dry Goods and Notions in Sankey's building, will locate permanently and occupy the storeroom on the corner of Main and Penn street, at present Musser & Smith's hardware.

—For habitual constipation, biliousness, sick headache, torpidity of the liver, congestion of the kidneys, malaria and all complications arising from a degenerated condition of the bowels, liver or kidneys, McDonald's Improved Liver Pills can be depended upon for certain and permanent relief; as a dinner pill, gentle cathartic and safe aperient, they are without an equal. Many eminent physicians use them in their daily practice. Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

—Mr Solomon Fisher and wife, accompanied by his cousin, Miss Fisher, all of near Rockgrove, Ill., arrived on Monday and were welcomed by Mr. and Mrs Jon. Harter, who are relatives to the western visitors and at whose house they will be hospitably entertained during their stay in town. This is their first visit to Pennsylvania and they are agreeably surprised at the rich mountain scenery in the old Keystone state. They will tarry in the East a few months.

THE GRANGERS' PICNIC.—The grangers' picnic on top of Nittany Mountain near Centre Hall, next Thursday, September 16th will, like on former occasions, be a very large and interesting gathering. There will be some eminent speakers present among them Hon. Mortimer Whitehead, of New Jersey, Col Victor Piollet, of Bradford county and Col. R. H. Thomas, secretary of the state grange. The grangers of the county are doing all in their power to make the picnic a grand success.

—Jas. R. Irwin, druggist, Curwinsville, Pa., writes:

'J. A. McDonald, DEAR SIR:—Send us ½ gross of your Worm Powders—they give good satisfaction to our trade. Professionally, I always recommend them, as I consider they embody to the utmost the principal and most desirable points in a vermifuge—smallness of dose, easiness to take, compactness and elegance, while our steadily increasing sales attest their value as a worm destroyer and the satisfaction they give our trade.'

Dissatisfied purchasers can have their money refunded.

—The way the papers all over the country speak of the Lewisburg Fair, they must expect to beat the state fair. They offer over $1000 for trotting, $500 for one race on the 25th, $600 for blooded cattle, $250 for poultry and other things in proportion. The ladies of Lewisburg and the Seminary promise a grand display of Paintings and Embroidery. Our ladies ought to see this. A corn harvester will be on exhibition. Everybody can afford to go and see this fair as the fare for the round trip from Coburn is only $1.00 and return by special train in the evening.

—Prof. A. Bierly, of New York, called at this office last Friday and during a pleasant chat expressed his intention to give this town a thorough canvass to raise a good class in vocal music for this fall. If successful, which we hope he will be, he expects to start the term about the first of October. Prof. Bierly has an excellent reputation as a music teacher as well as a gentleman and we feel like urging our townpeople to give him all the encouragement in their power. In musical respects there is still room for improvement in our town and chances of this kind should not be left go without a trial.

—The best assortment of Writing Tablets that was ever brought to town has just received at the Journal Store. Mr. Deininger has made an excellent selection this time as the various styles of his tablets suit every taste, every profession and every pocket book. They range in price from 2 cents up to 25 and the stock is immense. There is no place on this side of Bellefonte where this line of Stationery is carried as extensively as at the Journal store. The common Pencil Tablet, ruled and unruled, small and large, the finer paper tablet, for pen and ink, the school composition book, the receipt book, and numerous other styles which we have not space to mention.

—We learn that a number of people in this town felt a slight shock of the earthquake on Tuesday night of last week. Reports from Bellefonte, Lewisbuurg, and other neighboring towns state that the shocks were more or less perceptible in all those places.

Good Results in Every Case.

D. A. Bradford, wholesale paper dealer of Chattanooga, Tenn., writes that he was afflicted with a severe cold that settled on his lungs; had tried many remedies without benefit. Being induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, did so and was entirely cured by use of a few bottles. Since which time he has used it in his family for all Coughs and Colds with best results. This is the experience of thousands whose lives have been saved by this Wonderful Discovery.

Trial Bottles Free at J. Eisenhuth's Drug Store.

BAND FESTIVAL.—Large posters are out announcing the festival to be held in the rink on Penn street by the Millheim Cornet Band on Saturday afternoon and evening, Sept. 18th. The band will be ably assisted by the Brush valley band, who have consented to be present and furnish the music. The refreshments will be steam-made ice cream, the finest cakes, summer drinks and fresh oysters. During the evening a number of Cake Walks will be had and every effort will be made to give the public the best accomodations and most pleasant time. The rink will be attractively decorated. The proceeds are intended for the purchase of new instruments and a generous public are urgently requested to give this festival their liberal patronage.

DEATH OF AN ESTEEMED LADY.—It was with profound sorrow that the many friends of Mrs. Samuel Frank heard of her sudden and unexpected death which occurred on Wednesday afternoon of last week. Deceased was the estimable wife of Judge Frank, and the beloved and honored mother of our townsman, Dr. Geo. S. Frank, as well as two other sons and one daughter, who are left to mourn the loss of a dear one. The demise of a woman of her type, with the noblest christian character and the most gentle and hospitable disposition, is indeed calculated to send a thrill of deep regret to the hearts of all who knew her. She enjoyed good health until but a few hours before her death when she received a stroke of palsy that ultimately terminated a useful and spotless life. Mrs. Frank was the daughter of George Brumgart, one of the oldest settlers of Brushvalley, and was consequently well-known by old and young. She was a faithful member of the Lutheran church most of her life and died the death of the righteous.

Her burial took place on Saturday forenoon and owing to her large family connection and the high esteem she was held in by all her neighbors and acquaintances the funeral was one of the largest seen around here for years. An impressive sermon was preached by Rev. Lenhart, the officiating clergyman. Thus another pilgrim has joined the great host in eternity for permanent rest and peace. The writer offers his sincere condolences to the surviving members of the bereaved family.

THE FACTORY AGAIN.—At this writing it looks as though Millheim is to have the hosiery factory. The main point, the nervus rerum, has been successfully settled and sufficient funds have been secured in stock and bonus subscriptions to start the industry whenever the proper time is here. Our citizens in general and the men of means in particular have with a very few exceptions displayed a most laudable spirit of enterprise in this matter. After several meetings of the stockholders at which the project was deliberately weighed and discussed it became evident to all that an enterprise of this kind will add materially to the prosperity of the borough as well as the surrounding country and they took a hold of it in a measured but determined way. At their last meeting on Tuesday afternoon a committee of five, consisting of A. Walter, D. A. Musser, J. W. Snook, J. H. Reifsnyder and John Stoner, was appointed, vested with executive power to make further arrangements with the prospective manufacturers and bring the business to a satisfactory close. This puts the transaction in a more tangible shape. There are of course various details that will need to be looked after and arranged before the matter may be considered done. But it is the opinion of the stockholders that unless unlooked for difficulties should arise the factory is an assured thing. Messrs. Crawford, the gentlemen who will take charge of the establishment are evidently experienced business men who possess the necessary push and snap to make a success of the undertaking. Most likely one of them will be in town within the next few days. In the meantime those of our citizens who have not yet had an opportunity to subscribe either stock or bonus contributions are informed that the stock book is in the hands of A. Walter, while B. O. Deininger has the bonus subscription book. In our next issue we hope to give further and conclusive news about the industry.

MULTUM IN PARVO.—McDonald's Great Blood Purifier or Sarsaparilla Alterative is the most highly concentrated, most harmoniously and skilfully combined of all the blood medicines offered to the public. Many certificates from well-known and worthy persons could be furnished to substantiate the virtues claimed for this great medicine, but the manufacturer prefers simply to say any purchaser feeling the benefit derived from the use of a bottle not equivalent to the seventy-five cents invested in the purchase can have their money refunded.

AARONSBURG.

Cool nights and warm days.

W. T. Meyer and family from Shamokin, Pa., are here on a visit.

Someone says there is a bush meeting in progress somewhere northwest of Woodward.

Geo. Kister and Willis Musser have gone into the butchering business. They will call on their Aaronsburg customers with fresh beef once a week.

Thos. Harper received the appointment for this district to gather cream for the Spring Mills Creamery. B. F. Burd will run the wagon for Mr. Harper. We had a look at one of the company's cans, they are a novel arrangement.

Rev. Iry and family, from Chester Springs, Pa., arrived at the lady's parents, Doc. Musser's, on last Monday.

Quite a large number of our older citizens were to Rebersburg on last Saturday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Samuel Frank. We were told the attendance was unusually large.

D. W. Holloway and a Mr. Tutt, from Akron, Ohio, and W. B Holloway, from Lock Haven, Pa., were the guests of Dr. Musser on last Saturday.

Rumor says that hereafter the Centre Hall Reporter will have an Aaronsburg correspondent. Call around, Mr. Correspondent. Let's compare notes and divide the profits.

A party of five, three ladies and two children, whose names we have not yet learned, from Milton, Pa., have taken boarding at Mr. Emanuel Cronmiller's. The continued warm weather will lengthen their stay here.

The ladies of Aaron's square have, at their last meeting, decided that Coal Tar is a nuisance. It's amusing to hear the different expressions made by some of them. To some it is very sickening, causes headache, takes the appetite, some even declare it no good, and is only a waste of time and money. Shut the door, I don't want that ugly smell in my house.

Mrs. Hammon, of Milton, Pa., is visiting at Mrs. Eva Rodgers. Mrs. Watterman of Iowa is making her annual visit at Mr. Jas. P. Coburns.

ANOTHER.

SMITH TOWN.

The farmers are busy sowing.

Pierce Emerick came all the way from Nittany Valley last week for Farmers' Friend wheat.

If there are as many squirrels shot as there are guns fired, they must be nearly all gone by this time.

Louisa Vonada, who was working for F. P. Duck this summer, left for her home in Brushvalley to help entertain the little stranger at her father's house.

Miss Wise, of Brush Valley, is staying in our midst a few weeks.

The young fellow who was to take one of our young ladies to Nittany Valley last Sunday failed to make his appearance at the appointed time and the lady had to stay at home. It's a shame, he ought to be tarred and feathered.

Smith Town's population is on the increase. A little democrat at John Keen's.

Mr. Lyman Emerick, of Nittany Valley, was here on Friday and brought the sad news of the death of Miss Irene Decker, which occurred that morning at 4 o'clock. Deceased was a sister to Ella Decker, the little girl who burned to death on the 22nd of August, both daughters of Adam Decker, of Snydertown. She was taken sick the first week in June and for twelve long weeks was a sufferer, awaiting the final call. Her age was 17 years, 1 month and 1 day. She was a consistent member of the Reformed church at Hublersburg and a regular attendant and teacher of the Snydertown Sunday school. Thus the Lord, in his infinite wisdom, has in less than two weeks removed another beloved child from Mr. Decker's family and a useful and bright young lady from the church and Sunday school. She will be sorely missed by her bereaved parents and many friends, and especially by her devoted companion, whose name appears at the head of this item. The funeral took place last Sunday forenoon at Hublersburg, when her pastor, Rev. Shoemaker preached a very instrustive sermon from 1 Cor. 15:22. Your correspondent was an attendant of the services and we have never witnessed a larger concourse of friends at such an occasion, manifesting their tender regard for the one who in the very bloom of life fell

"Asleep in Jesus! blessed sleep,
From which none ever wakes to weep.'

JUMBO.

IN TIME OF PEACE PREPARE FOR PEACE.—Changes of climate, diet and water, ofttimes atmospheric changes alone, will subject some member of the family to cholera morbus, dysentery, &c., when that wail of misery in the "wee sma' hours of the night" announce the fact, and you are sent from your comfortable bed across lots or down back alleys for a doctor, 'twould be a good time to reflect that had you only secured a bottle of Curtis' Carmelite Cordial in time, you could with a few drops have headed off the attack, saved a doctor's bill, and secured a peaceful night's rest. Dissatisfied purchasers can have their money refunded.

REBERSBURG.

Our farmers have finished sowing the wheat and are now waiting their time to cut the large corn crop.

Many people in this vicinity are making preparations to attend the cave picnic next Saturday. A good time is expected.

Mrs. Benjamin Gramley, who was here visiting, left this week for her home at Hinkly, Ill.

On last Thursday the building covering the bake oven on J. W. Snook's farm [Wes. Snyder, tenant] caught fire and burned to ashes. The bake-oven stands only a few feet from the dwelling house, and but for the timely aid Mr. Snyder received from the neighbors the large building would certainly have been destroyed, as several of the shutters had caught fire.

Mrs. Samuel Frank, the wife of our townsman, ex-Judge Frank, died very suddenly on Wednesday, September 1. The lady was in usual good health up to a few hours before her death, when she received a stroke of palsy which resulted in her death. She was buried on Saturday forenoon in the Lutheran and Reformed (Union) cemetery.

One night last week a mean, sinstained scoundrel put about three pecks of poisoned oats and corn, mixed, on a heap in the field where Wm. Kreamer's hogs are wont to roam. Fortunately the poisoned stuff was discovered by Mr. Bower, who at once reported to Kreamer and the grain was gathered up and burned.

Wm. Bierly, the man who sells confectionery in our town, received a full line of candies this week. He now wants the boys to call on him and buy the best and sweetest for their girls.

Two of our best looking young men took a notion to have some extra fun one evening last week and accordingly one of them masqueraded as a lady and was taken to Wolfe's store in a buggy by the other young fellow. The ruse worked to perfection. At Wolfe's store the would-be young lady was introduced to several gentleman as a miss hailing from the Narrows, in the store dress-goods were looked at, but none bought and there never was the faintest suspicion of his real sex. Finally the boys pulled for home, thinking that perhaps the disguise might be discovered in the end and their fun be spoiled.

SQUIBOB.

COBURN.

In our last we stated the party taking charge of the grain house was David Bartges, should have been Adam Bartges.

The main topic here is who will be appointed storekeeper at the still house. Mr. Ginter was here this (Monday) making a survey for the Government and the lucky applicant will now shortly receive the appointment. Of the two applicants from this place there can be nothing more said than they are both worthy of the position and either one competent to fill the place, and we think the appointment rightly belongs to Coburn.

Mr. F. P. Barker disposed of his property on Monday to G. S. Meyer, of Linden Hall, consideration $1700.

G. A. R. day in Lewisburg, Sept. 9th, promises to be a success. A crowd of at least 100 is expected to take the train here. Fare for round trip $1.40; train leaving Coburn at 7.23 a. m. returning leave Lewisburg at 10.15 p. m., reaching Coburn about 12 o'clock.

Mrs. W. H. Kremer who has been sick for some time is able to be about again.

Durham Bros. & Co. are loading a car of potatoes this week paying 28 to 30 cents for them.

Mr. Hosterman is fixing up the planing mill property for a dwelling house. We think the one side could be easily fixed up for a public hall which we should have and hope Mr. Hosterman will see it as others do and give us an improvement which is badly needed.

Through the kindness of agent Kremer we obtained a few figures concerning the amount of business done at our station during the month of August. The number of solid loaded cars forwarded during the month was 275, Lading consisting of lumber, prop timber, cattle, bark, wheat, potatoes and merchandise. Loaded cars received 25, lading phosphate, coal, corn, machinery, salt and merchandise. The total weight of freight received 609.731 lbs. and the total weight of freight forwarded 8,604,521 lbs. The total freight on goods received and forwarded being about $7000, and the ticket sales $539. This is an increase in weight over August previous year of over 3,000,000 lbs and a increase in freight of about $3000, which makes a good showing for our station here.

The case of assault brought before the Squire last week was peaceably settled by the aggressor acknowledging he had done wrong, paying the costs and promising to do so no more.

The boys who went in the car and eat the melons also settled by paying for the melons, and hope they have learned a lesson by it. VALE.

all at once around them, and threatening the city with total destruction, the people whom you met on the streets or saw gathered together in groups in the open places evidently did not give them a thought. No one watched the ruddy flames or the pilars of cloud rising high into the still night air. All were too intent on listening with strained senses for the dreaded recurrence of that horrible growl or groan of the power under the seas and under the land to give a thought to the new terror, though it had threatened his own home and many homes in the doomed city.

The crowds poured in from every direction to the space just described, as though it had been indeed a charmed circle and life depended on passing within its grassy bounds. Street cars, carriages and other vehicles were ranged in lines on the streets surrounding the square, while the horses stood as though sniffing the ground in anxious inquiry. The colored people everywhere were loud and increasing in their declamations of alarm in the singing of hymns and in fervent appeals for God's mercy—in which appeals, God knows, many a proud heart who heard them arising in the night and in the hour of His wonderous might devoutly, humbly and sincerely joined. Danger brings all of us to the level of the lowliest. There were no distinctions of place or power, pride or caste, in the assemblages that were gathered together in Charleston on Tuesday night. It was a curious spectacle to look back upon. It is a good one to remember for white and black alike. There were instances of unselfish devotion, of kind and loving regard between master and servant, mistress and maid, in the presence of a common ill and of threatened ruin, that showed as nothing else could show, how strong is the tie that binds our white people and our black people together; and this lesson of the dread visitor we may hope, too, may never be forgotten.

Arrived at his home the writer found the same scenes of distraction and wreck which marked nearly every other home in the city. All the houses in the neighborhood had suffered seriously, and streets, yards and gardens were filled with the fallen chimneys and fragments of walls, while the walls that were left standing were cleft asunder, in many cases from top to bottom, and were badly shattered in every instance. Women and children, roused from sleep or interrupted in their evening pursuits by the sound of the ruin being effected above and around them, rushed out into the streets and huddled together awaiting the end, whatever it might be. Invalids were brought out on mattresses and deposited on the roadway. No thought was given to treasures left behind in the effort to save the peculiar treasure of life itself, suddenly become so precious in the eyes of all, the invalid woman and the robust man alike. Until long after midnight the streets were filled with fugitives in sight of their homes. Through the long hours that followed few were the eyes even of childhood that were closed in sleep. Charleston was full of those who watched for the morning, and never in any city in any land did the first gray shades that mark the approach of dawn appear so beautiful and so welcome to eyes as they appeared to the thousands of people who hailed them this morning from the midst of the countless wrecked homes and our thrice scourged but still patient, still brave, still hopeful, still beautiful city by the sea.

Kindness to Animals.

Every one should know that kindly treated animals will do their best for sheir owners. A curious case happened recently, which may be given as an example. A noted trotter was driven in a race by a strange driver. The horses was evidently dissatisfied and lost two heats. The old driver knew the horse could do better, and begged the owner to be permitted to drive him. His entreaties prevailed, and when he mounted the sulky the horse whinnied with pleasure, and won the next three heats with ease, making such a record that the owner had an offer of fifteen thousand dollars for the animal. It is always thus. A farm horse kindly treated will do more work than one which is not attached to the owner or driver. A cow will lose milk when attended by a strange or disagreeable person, and one that is petted and treated with gentleness will never exhibit the common fractiousness of kicking, or holding up the milk. This is true of all farm animals, who return kindness with affection and generosity, and abundantly repay the consideration shown them by their owners. Every boy, especially every farmer's boy, should early learn to treat all animals with kindness.
